LITTLE PLANTING

Will Be Done By Some Knox County Farmers, Says the Grange Reporter.

An interesting session of Limerock Valley Pomona Grange was held with Wessaweske Grange, South Thomaston, Wednesday afternoon and evening. A merry party of members of Penobscot View Grange went down on a straw ride, with a moonlight excursion supplement on the return in the evening. The proportion of men present was a subject of general remark and the intervals between sessions were employed by them in the most serious discussion of State and town affairs.

The overvaluation of the local towns by the State assessors came in for sharp criticism.

The feeling was expressed that there will be as little planting as is possible this season, and that little, for the farmers' personal use. There will be little time spent on hoed crops for the market.

IN LEGISLATURE

Opponents To South Thomaston Division Expect Report In Their Favor Today—Other Matters.

It is said around the State House that the committee on Towns, to which was referred the matter of dividing the town of South Thomaston, will make its final report today. O. H. Emery of Camden who has been at the Capitol this week, associated with Gifford B. Butler, in opposition to the movement, arrived home last night, and appeared to be in a very jubilant frame of mind. "We will get a majority report of ought not to pass," said Judge Emery. "When the matter goes before the House opponents to the division will win an easy victory, and in the Senate I do not believe there will be more than one member who favors it."

Peaslee of Thomaston has introduced an act amending the State aid to High School law so as to provide that in case any town has failed to comply with any provisions of law by reason of circumstances beyond its control, the State superintendent of schools may, after proper investigation, certify such parts of the high school aid as circumstances may justify.

An act regulating the sale of liquor in Maine introduced Thursday would have the effect, it is understood, of permitting druggists to handle liquor for medicinal purposes under federal regulations. Since liquor agencies were abolished about ten years ago this has not been legal, being prohibited by the state constitution. The proposed act follows:

"The regulations governing the keeping and sale of intoxicating liquors in this state shall be the same as the regulations which are now in force or shall hereafter be adopted by the Congress of the United States for the enforcement of the 18th amendment of the Constitution of the United States."

Under the Maine constitution the sale and keeping for sale of liquors for medicinal and mechanical purposes and the arts may be permitted under such regulations as the legislature may provide.

The committee on Legal Affairs reported ought to pass on act abolishing the appointment of assistant assessors when public exigency requires it; and ought to pass on act to authorize the division of towns having less than 4,000 inhabitants into convenient polling places.

The committee on Taxation reported ought not to pass on the resolve proposing an amendment to the Constitution, providing for a State income tax; and ought not to pass on act to exempt the property of war veterans who have reached the age of 70 years from taxation to an amount up to $5,000.

The committee on Public Utilities reported, in a new draft, on act to consolidate the steamboat inspection department with the Public Utilities Commission. The new draft provides that the Public Utilities Commission shall appoint two inspectors of steamboats, each for a term of five years. One of the inspectors shall have a practical knowledge of shipbuilding and the other of the construction and use of boilers.

The committee on Education reported ought to pass on resolve appropriating $15,000 to build a dormitory at Nason Institute at Springvale.

If the women of Maine are to have the right of suffrage they want to assume the duties attached thereto and especially that relating to jury service. That was the consensus of opinion expressed by the representatives of the women of the State before the committee on Judiciary Wednesday when they appeared to oppose the act exempting women from jury duty, upon which hearing was held. No one appeared as a proponent for the measure and it was opposed by Mrs. Florence Brooks Whitehouse of Portland, representing the National Woman's Party. Mrs. Mabel Connor of Augusta, representing the Maine League of Women Voters; Mrs. Frank E. Woodruff of Brunswick, representing the W. C. T. U.; Judge John P. Deering of Biddeford and Representative William O. Rogers of Rockland.

A. L. Miles and Fred C. Black of Rockland, representing the blueberry growers, appeared Wednesday before the Committee on Inland Fisheries and Game for the bill which would permit the killing of gulls. They said the blueberry industry is growing in Knox and Washington counties, and that the gulls are doing great damage. Representative G. A. Phillips of Bar Harbor said the same for blueberries and huckleberries in Hancock county. It was then brought out that the gulls are protected by the Federal law and the proper thing to do is to go to the commissioner of inland fisheries and game, who in co-operation with the Federal authority may bring relief.

Harry C. Wilbur of Portland, one of the members of the commission on sea and shore fisheries, appeared before the committee on sea and shore fisheries Wednesday in behalf of the bill to amend the revised statutes giving the aggrieved party the right to appeal from the decision of the municipal officers in granting rights for wharves and fish wells. "I believe that all selectmen are honest, but I knew once of a town where the selectmen controlled the wharf privileges," said Commissioner Wilbur. "I think it proper that the appeal might go to the supreme court. No one can say but that this right to appeal is a fair proposition. There are no other conditions where property is at stake where there is no right of appeal. We all have confidence in the supreme judicial court. A town division fight came up before this legislature and the real matter behind the whole thing was the granting of fish wharf privileges."

CROWD LIKED IT

And Receipts of Street Railway Minstrels Were Largest Glencove Grange Hall Has Seen.

The minstrel show, given for the benefit of the Street Railway Employees Relief Association, Tuesday night, netted approximately $150 and abundantly justified the high expectations to which the announcements had given rise. The gross receipts of $282, as well as the net receipts, are said to have been the largest ever taken at an entertainment in this hall.

Penobscot View Grange hall is amply commodious for ordinary occasions, but the Street Railway minstrel show is no ordinary affair, so an early display of the S. R. O. sign was necessary. It was not only a large audience but was not afraid to show its full appreciation of what was being done to entertain it. No handclaps in that crowd.

The referee's whistle sounded precisely at 8 o'clock, and the rising curtain revealed the following lineup: Interlocutor, Herbert W. Keep; left end, Alton Foster and Maurice Gregory; right end, Charles Maxey and Charles Marston; circle, Joseph Young, Ralph Tibbets, Fred Kenney, Bert Maxey, Edward Hayes, Leon Fickett, Fred Wilson and Joseph Rhodes. Each performer wore a pink carnation presented by Mervyn Flanders of the Mather greenhouse.

The first part contained a generous measure of melody well seasoned with local jokes the points in which were readily grasped by the audience. The continuous and hearty applause increased the courage of the performers and inspired their best efforts.

Part Two opened with a soprano solo, "Beautiful Isle of Somewhere," sung with such excellent effect by Mrs. Herman Hoche that she was obliged to give an encore number, "Let the Rest of the World Go By."

H. W. Keep and Frank Allen joined drives in a comedy sketch, entitled "Fun on Rollers." It is not to be assumed from this that Bert resorted to the eight-wheeled skids. On the contrary he wisely confined his efforts to terra firma, his club-swinging act proving that he is still a terra in that line, and not so near the point of retirement as his recent statement would seem to indicate.

When the spectators recovered from the giddiness which was caused by trying to follow the gyrations of the rapidly moving Indian clubs, they found themselves confronted by Mr. Allen in the role of Boob McNutt, king of roller skaters. The stage floor was a bit too rough for a finished performance, and it was Mr. Allen who came near being "finished." The act was a scream, however, and the only thing which the artist seemed to find hard was the floor.

Old Plantation Scenes was the title of the next turn, which introduced some tuneful instrumental music by Edward Hayes, violin; Fred Kenney, trombone; Charles Maxey, banjo; and Charles Marston and Fred Wilson, harmonicas.

Little Earl Charles the Watermelon Pickaninny, and Reginald Clement, buck and wing dancer, added very successfully to the plantation effect.

The next number on the program introduced trick banjo playing by Albert D. Libby, clerk at the Hotel Rockland Annex. The audience showed immense enjoyment in this act, and the artist was recalled several times. The Association greatly appreciates the success of his act, and feels that it was especially fortunate in securing the services of such a high class artist.

The entertainment concluded with the comedy sketch "Under the Gaslight," presented by H. W. Keep as "Henry Irving Booth" and Alton Foster as "Uned-a-Bill." Mr. Keep had the leading role when this sketch was presented at Park Theatre last year, and the exceptional talent which he displayed at that time had lost none of its edge. Mr. Foster proved a worthy partner, and the curtain rang down to the accompaniment of prolonged laughter.

In the bestowal of praise which the all around excellence of the minstrel show calls for, Miss Gladys Maxey as pianist is not overlooked.

The floor was cleared, and the patrons danced until midnight to the music of Marston's Orchestra.

The committee's job was a strenuous one, handling so large a crowd. This was done to perfection by Mr. Trim, who likes nothing better than to accommodate the public. The other members of the committee were named in a previous issue.

THE CLASSICS

An Appeal For Their Wider Study In the High Schools of Knox County.

Lieutenant Commander Carlton F. Snow believes in the study of Latin in High School. That he advocates the study of Latin will be continued evident from the fact that the names of his three children now in Rockland High School are seen in the list of classical students. He writes as follows:

Some Practical Values.

As an assistance to a thorough comprehension of the meaning and derivation of many words in our own and other languages, it is to be hoped that the study of Latin will be continued in our public schools. As a mental exercise alone it is of value, while a knowledge of Latin is a requirement for admission to many of our colleges and universities.

As to the use of Latin subsequent to the educational period, it may be said that in some professions, such as that of the lawyer, Latin is essential, while in many others, such as medicine and surgery, botany, biology etc., a thorough grounding in Latin has proved its value.

THE UNIVERSALISTS

Plan To Raise Budget of $6500 With "Every Member Canvass" Monday.

The Universalist Church is preparing to make an Every Member canvass next Monday, and to raise in a single day the budget of $6500, which is expected to cover the expenses for the year commencing May 1. The following statement is issued by the committee:

"While looking forward with much enthusiasm to the coming on Sunday, May 1st, of our pastor, Rev. John M. Hatchell, it is necessary that we approach the event fully equipped to meet the present day needs of Universalism in the community. Having this in mind, the trustees, after serious consideration, have adopted a Budget of $6500 to cover the year from May 1, 1921 to May 1, 1922. The income from invested funds will reduce the amount to be raised by a one-day campaign, March 28, to about $6,000. "Easter Sunday, March 27, is to be a memorable day at Church of Immanuel. Rev. John Smith Lowe, general superintendent of Universalist churches, will preach the morning sermon. In the evening an informal service will be held, the plans for the drive of the following day considered and final instructions given to those who are to take part.

"At 8 o'clock, Monday morning, the teams will meet in the church vestry and after a light breakfast will proceed with the work in hand, returning at noon for lunch and conference. At 6:30 a parish supper will be served, after which the returns will be announced and every friend of Church of Immanuel is expected to be present and contribute to the enthusiasm which an over the top announcement will produce."

The success of the campaign is not to be doubted when one surveys the strong organization which will take the field. Following is a list of the teams:

RETURNING SPRING

It won't be long before we'll see

The green returning to the tree,

An' over all our lives anew

Will stretch a kindly sky of blue;

The tulips will come springing up

To catch the sunbeams in a cup

And every one of them will say:

"We were not dead, but just away."

We've had our sleep, and now we rise,

Fresh messengers from the heavenly skies,

To carry beauty down below

For every one of you to know."

It won't be long before the streams

Will wake from all their winter dreams,

And start to laugh and race again

Down hill-sides and the level plain,

Making their journey to the sea

Most human-like it seems to me.

For we are headed seaward, too—

Each morning here we wake anew

To toss and race and move along

Towards that great unnumbered throng

Which went before, and at the end

Our lives with greater lives to blend.

It won't be long before the Spring

Should strengthen faith that's faltering.

Two old friends met on Main Street the other day; the sun was shining, the autos were whizzing by—it sure looked like summer. One said to the other, "Got your car running?" "Not yet," was the reply, "my Battery has gone bad. Guess I'll have to buy a new one, but don't know what to buy." "That would be easy for me to decide," said the first one. "Buy a Willard Thread Rubber Insulated Battery, one in which the insulation is guaranteed to last as long as the plates, and the Willard Service Station here will make good the guarantee; 160 of the new cars sold today come equipped with the Willard Thread Rubber Insulated Batteries, which cost the maker of the car more than any other battery they can buy, but they consider it worth it. I would advise you to go and see the Willard Station at the address given below and let them look your battery over and advise you if repairs or new would be best."

The Courier-Gazette

THREE-TIMES-A-WEEK

Rockland, Maine, March 26, 1921.
Personally appeared Frank S. Lydell, who on oath declares that he is president in the office of the Rockland Publishing Co., and that of the issue of The Courier-Gazette of March 24, 1921, there was printed a total of 6,023 copies. Before me, FRANK R. MILLER, Notary Public.

The death of Cardinal Gibbons takes out of our country a cultured gentleman who was at once a great churchman and a great and patriotic American citizen. He began life as a grocer's boy and attained the supreme heights of honor. The great men of our time, without respect to religious creed, have been his closest friends. How he is regarded by those of other faiths is expressed in the words of Bishop Murray of the Protestant Episcopal Church, who yesterday said: "The transfer of James Cardinal Gibbons to a higher sphere of activity removes from the stage of current human events the most prominent figure thereon in our country (and probably in the world) during the past half century."

The book by former Secretary of State Lansing, issued yesterday by Houghton Mifflin Co., Boston, is a historical sensation, dealing as it does quietly but frankly with President Wilson's half year spent at the Paris Peace Conference. It is the first intimate view of the insides of the President's connection with those momentous days, candidly presented, and will heighten the conviction so generally entertained that Mr. Wilson's personal presence in Paris was the worst possible thing that could have happened and responsible in a very large degree for the failure in which the conference unmistakably ended. Every student of history should read Mr. Lansing's book, "The Peace Conference."

Charles D. Clarke of Bath, who died in Augusta Thursday, was long known as among the bright newspaper writers of Maine. In 1879 he founded the Bath Independent, now owned by the Times. For several years the paper was printed in the office of The Courier-Gazette, Clarke making a regular visit to Rockland on the day before publication and taking home with him the printed edition the next morning. It was a live and original sheet and kept many of the shipping city people by the ears. With the progress of time the editor moderated his fervor and the quality of his work steadily improved. He was a long-time friend of the proprietors of this paper, a good fellow and we learn of his death with real regret.

The Courier-Gazette ventures the opinion that if President Harding were to pardon Eugene Debs the world would be in no particular danger. Debs is a socialistic crank and he deserves prison for his utterances when we were at war with Germany, but three years confinement ought to answer every purpose. We don't believe the United States stands in any ultimate danger from socialism, despite the ravings of this old man and other loud-mouthed cranks here and there.

The spring clean-up season is close at hand. What is Rockland going to do about it? Any particular concert of action, or just going it on individual account? Of course that means that the many who take pride in handsome and orderly premises will lay out time and money fixin' up, worthy efforts that may be almost entirely defeated by the slovenly and unpatriotic citizen here and there who "doesn't care." There is where organization counts.

KNOX COUNTY'S DENSITY

Average density of population in the United States has been announced as 25.5, and in Maine as 25.7. In Maine, Cumberland county, with 352 square miles and 124,376 residents, has the greatest density in population, 145.8 to the square mile. Knox county has 351 square miles and a population of 26,245, the density per mile being 74.8. Lincoln's density is 35 and Hancock's only 19.9.

Charlie Lawry Wins A Remarkable 10-String Bowling Match At Kennedy's Alleys.

Charlie Lawry, erstwhile bowling star, swung back into the line light with a vengeance Thursday evening when he had a 10-string total of 1059, and defeated Levi Mank by 12 pins. The contest took place at Kennedy's alleys, and old timers cannot recall when they had ever seen the pins fly in such a lively manner, before. The first string set the fans on edge. Mank scattering the sticks for a total of 123, while Lawry was only two pins behind in what was probably the most remarkable string ever bowled in Maine. There was no getting away from

Lawry, however, for 106 was his smallest score in the first half of the 10-string match, and his total of 558 in five consecutive strings will probably stand as Rockland's record for some time to come. Many gained in the last half, but not enough to make any serious dent in his opponent's lead. It is worthy of note that the lowest string bowled by either man was 96. Here are the figures:
Lawry—127, 111, 106, 108, 106, 102, 100, 96, 93, 105, total 1059.
Mank—129, 107, 98, 104, 99, 112, 96, 102, 98, 101, total 1047

Roy Gould is still confined to the house with rheumatism.

Mrs. Alice Robbins and Mrs. Carrie Ames of Union and Mrs. Eva Taylor, Mrs. Nina Taylor and Mrs. Annie Esancy of South Hope were pleasantly entertained at the home of Mrs. Mattie Brown Thursday.

Mrs. Maud Wellman is suffering from a severe attack of gripe.

There was no grange meeting last Thursday night owing to the inclement weather.

Those small ads in The Courier-Gazette are read by every body. That is why they are so popular and effective.

SUMMER COTTAGES AND BOARD

About this time of year The Courier-Gazette begins to have inquiries by mail from persons who wish to visit this part of Maine during the summer season. They seek to rent a cottage or to find board. There is no prepared list of such accommodations anywhere to be had, but there ought to be. We purpose carrying in our column of classified advertising announcements of this character, which the paper will convey to distant points, and copies of which we can mail in response to inquiries for information. The attention of those with boarding accommodations, or cottages for rent or sale, is invited to this opportunity to obtain publicity at very small cost.

Every issue of The Courier-Gazette carries the home news of Knox county to every State in the Union and to many foreign lands.

Frank J. Blood left Friday morning for Rosindale, Mass. to visit his son, Dr. F. C. Blood. The Camden Commandery has been invited to attend the morning service of the Baptist church Sunday when a special Easter program has been arranged. A children's concert will take place at 12 o'clock and a cantata and baptismal service will be held in the evening.

Mrs. Olive Chapin of Rockland is the guest of her son Oscar Chapin. Miss Josephine Paul is the guest of her parents.

The Elm street reading club will hold an open meeting Monday evening at the home of the Misses Young. Refreshments will be served.

Boats may be hired of H. W. Libby of the Fish Hatchery, for spring fishing.

Myra M., wife of Walter B. Rollins died at her home March 23. A few weeks ago she went to the Silsby Hospital, hoping that an operation would restore her health, but it was of no avail. Her only daughter, Lorna, died suddenly in Portland a short time ago and undoubtedly hastened the death of the mother. Her loss will be felt by a large circle outside the family. Mrs. Rollins was born in Houlton and died at the age of 40 years. Funeral services were held Friday afternoon, conducted by Rev. R. H. Hayden of the Episcopal church. She leaves to mourn her loss, a husband, a mother, an adopted son, three brothers, George, Wallace and William Ellsworth, who are located in the West, and two sisters.

The National Guard is requested to attend the morning service at the Methodist church Sunday. Clarence E. Fish will play a cornet solo.

A baptismal service and reception of members will be held at the Congregational church Sunday. Owing to much illness among the children, the Easter concert has been postponed. "The Challenge of the Open Tomb" is the subject for the evening service.

Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Cook have returned from Burnham where they were called by the death of Mrs. Cook's brother-in-law, Dennis Chandler.

Another big dance at popular prices will be held in the open house next Tuesday. Music will be furnished by Lane's Dance Artists, an orchestra with a fine reputation for dance music. It includes Kay Gallagher, Boston's famous saxophone; Dick Caravan, pianist; Mr. Brown, cornetist; and Mr. Gentner, trap drummer of the Montreal Jazz Band.

Louis F. Singleton of the Penobscot Woolen Co. has rented Mrs. Belle Tyler's cottage for the summer.

Mrs. Frank C. Manning has had a fall injuring one of her ankles.

Charles A. Eells, a former Camden boy, now of Massachusetts, had a burglary experience the other night.

A Revere dispatch tells the story thus: A burglar with plenty of "nerve" and self-possession obtained a gold watch and more than $30 in money early this morning when he wandered at will through the house at 7 Orchard street, Beachmont, and locked up the occupants in their bedrooms in order that they would not interfere with his getaway. About 3 a. m. the police were called to the apartment of Charles A. Eells who occupies the second floor. He said that he was asleep in his bedroom when he was awakened by seeing a flashlight in his kitchen. He started to rise, but the bed creaked. The burglar banged the bedroom door shut, calmly locked it on the outside with Eells inside and then ran downstairs and out the door. Eells shouted for aid, and a milkman responded. He broke open the door and Eells made a quick investigation, which showed that a gold watch and $27 in money were missing from his apartment. Eells' cries aroused Mr. and Mrs. Moses Connick on the third floor, but when they tried to get out of their bedroom they found the door locked with the key on the outside. The milkman obligingly released the prisoners who found Mr. Connick's trousers and pocketbook on the kitchen floor. Three dollars was missing from the empty pocketbook and all the loose change was taken from the trousers pockets. The police made a search of Beachmont but failed to locate the daring burglar.

ASH POINT

Luther Crowley of Lynn was the guest of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Crowley last week. He is employed in the "Post Department" of the General Electric Co.

Miss Edna Crowley is home from Augusta for several weeks' vacation.

Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Hurd and family who have lived in Rockland for several months have returned to their home here.

Robert, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Harvey, who had his right leg broken in two places last week is getting along well at Knox Hospital.

Laurens Allen has returned from a trip to Augusta.

James Mullins got a few herring in his weir this week.

Eva and Carmen Crowley are home for a week's vacation from Rockland High School.

George Hurd who is very ill is attended by Dr. Bartlett of Rockland. Kenneth and Shirley Hurd are home on vacation from High School.

Mrs. Arthur Brown and Mrs. LeRoy McConchie were in Rockland Thursday.

Friends of Mr. Mullins mother will be glad to know that she is getting along well.

Mrs. Ethel Dyer has bought 75 small chicks from George Haskell.

Grand Generalissimo Frank P. Denaco of Bangor inspected Clarendon Commandery, K. T. Thursday night, and found a goodly attendance of the members together with visitors from Vinalhaven and Camden. A banquet was served by the Eastern Star, to the accompaniment of music by Eastman's Orchestra. The order of the Temple was conferred upon Ralph H. Wight.

VERY FAST TEAM

Rockland High Girls Show Freeport Why They're Claiming State Championship.

The claims of the Rockland High School team to the girls' basketball championship of the State received still another boost last night when it won an emphatic victory over the strong Freeport High School. The visiting sextet was an extremely aggressive one, but found itself up against a combination which was not at all bashful. Rockland's defense was particularly good, and the Freeport forwards began to wonder whether Moran and Snow were really two school girls or two stone walls. McLoon was again in her element, and kept up a dizzy bombardment of the Freeport goal. Brown excelled for Freeport. The score:

| Rockland High School | | |
|----------------------|-------|--------|
| Goals | Fouls | Points |
| McLoon, rf | 8 | 17 |
| Winslow, lf | 4 | 9 |
| Green, c | 0 | 0 |
| Flanagan, c | 0 | 0 |
| Snow, rg | 0 | 0 |
| Moran, lg | 0 | 0 |
| Totals | 12 | 26 |

| Freeport High School | | |
|----------------------|-------|--------|
| Goals | Fouls | Points |
| Small, lg | 0 | 2 |
| Rogers, rg | 0 | 0 |
| A. Martin, rg | 0 | 0 |
| Fish, c | 0 | 0 |
| Bamford, c | 0 | 0 |
| A. Martin, lf | 0 | 3 |
| Brown, rf | 3 | 0 |
| Totals | 3 | 5 |

Between the halves the R. H. S. Freshmen played a mixed team, four of whose players were R. H. S. varsity men this year, and their fifth man a sure shot. The Freshmen played a hard, clean game, but were defeated 25 to 18. Otho and Clyde Record were the stars.

Rumors current yesterday as to another Main street business change proved to be without foundation.

Deputy Sheriff Charles E. Heckbert, who is ill with pneumonia, was reported as more comfortable yesterday.

Freeman Young the Southend fish dealer, showed The Courier-Gazette a remarkable freak clam Thursday.

King Hiram Council goes to Vinalhaven Patriot's Day, and will confer the degrees upon about 25 candidates.

At least one Knox quarry paving quarry is doing quite a thriving business. Reference is made to the Joseph Leopold quarry at Vinalhaven where 190 men are employed, and where paving cutters will be employed as fast as they apply.

Peas were planted at the Austin Farm Wednesday. The proprietors, James Cochran and M. Frank Donohue, are going to have green peas for the Fourth if they have to plant steam pipes alongside the rows.

Lewis Hanley is giving a dance in Watts hall, Thomaston, next Tuesday evening, with every prospect that it will draw a large delegation. Marston will play. The Hanley dances were ever popular with Rockland folk.

The Universalist society will serve a parish supper Monday night. All who call themselves Universalists are urged to attend.

Schooner Lavinia M. Snow, Capt. Anderson, is at Wildcat discharging a cargo of coal from New York. Capt. Anderson plans to come home for an extended vacation.

The dance given by the 5th Company, C. A. C., in the Arcade next Wednesday evening, is one method by which that organization expects to raise its mess fund for the annual encampment next fall. The company is also desirous of raising funds to buy needed athletic paraphernalia.

Austin P. Brewer is at the Parker Hill U. S. Public Health Hospital receiving treatment in preparation for an operation which will be performed shortly.

Every boy and girl in town is in a quiver of expectation over those fishing outfits that are to be given away this afternoon by the Thomas Sporting Goods Co. Exactly at 3 o'clock, no earlier, the business of issuing the gifts will begin, and happy the boy or girl who doesn't forget to be there.

The Palm, formerly of the Rockland and Matineux route keeled over at low tide in Camden harbor yesterday morning, and the keeper Capt. E. E. Davis was obliged to seek assistance in getting it afloat again. The W. G. Butman estate, which owns this craft, has sold to the Boston Ship Brokerage Co. the schooner Iza L., which was at this port yesterday in command of Capt. John Lowe of Deer Isle who was seeking a tender. The schooner was being taken to Boston. Capt. O. A. Gilbert is at the head of the concern which bought it.

Parker F. Norcross has resigned his position as sales manager of the Rockland Motor Mart, and will shortly enter business for himself as agent for one of the standard cars. Mr. Norcross has been with the Rockland Motor Mart the past 2½ years, having exceptional success as a sales manager.

Pearl M. Look has bought through the Berliawsky real estate agency the Fred P. Snowman residence at 34 McLeod street. He will reside there.

J. C. Wiley of Rockland Highlands, who is in the public automobile service, is driving a new Nash car, which patrons are finding extremely comfortable.

L. C. Fish, representative of the E. A. Strout Farm Agency, reports numerous sales of farms in this vicinity. The past week he has sold three timber lots in Appleton, a farm in Union, a farm in Washington and two farms in Warren.

The funeral services of the late Private Henry Hill, who was killed in action in 1918, while serving in France with the 76th Regiment, were held Thursday afternoon at the Burpee undertaking parlors. Rev. J. S. Crossland of the Methodist Church officiated. Members of Winslow-Holbrook Post attended in civilian's garb and the bearers were eight members of that organization—Capt. David L. Haskell, P. H. McKusick, George Hart Eugene Lamb, Judson Burnett, John Custin, A. Pollock and Edward Walker. The interment was in Sea View cemetery. The young man was a son of the late Capt. and Mrs. Freeland O. Hill and one of the very few soldiers from this section of the State who was killed in action. The remains arrived in this city Wednesday noon and were taken at the railway station by a delegation officially representing Winslow-Holbrook Post. The ritual service of the Post was conducted by the Post Commander, William S. Healey, and the chaplain, Dr. H. V. Tweedie. About 20 members of the Post were present, together with a delegation from the Auxiliary. Both organizations sent floral tributes.

Megunticook Lake is open. The ice on Alford's Lake is very black and very thin. Will Norwood reports. Fishermen are getting their gear in readiness.

Marston's Orchestra at the Arcade tonight will be augmented by Mr. Libby, a trick banjoist from the Keith circuit. Watch his dust.

Neighbor Havener has installed a quartered oak serving counter in connection with his soda fountain. Looks nifty.

William H. Miller of Union has been in the city for a few days looking up titles and claims at Judge Campbell's office. Mr. Miller says that he finds the Judge very careful and accurate in this line of business.

Seven Dark Harbor summer residents have leased their cottages this season, and are going abroad to see the European battlefields.

Unless the scorers erred, and unless figures do what George Washington couldn't, a new bowling champion has arisen at Kennedy's alleys. Six strings, with a total of 900 pins is what the score sheets credit him with. Other bowlers are giving Charlie a wide berth.

Philadelphia parties have already made summer reservations at Hotel Rockland. "I look for the biggest summer business in the history of the State," was the optimistic remark made by Proprietor Donohue yesterday.

Miss Irene Weymouth, the 10-year-old daughter of M. F. Weymouth, of Rockland Highlands, is very proud of the fact, that peas which she planted herself, are breaking through the ground in fine style. She is especially jubilant because she is ahead of her grandfather, Charles Weymouth, the well known overseer at the almshouse who is supposed to be high line at farming. Evidently it runs in the family!

Large quantities of herring are being shipped daily from this port by concerns from Rockland and vicinity. The express office handled 150 barrels Thursday, with New York as the destination.

W. T. Prescott has a large quantity of materials assembled for the fine residence which he is to build this season south of Alan L. Bird's residence on Broadway.

Rockland Lodge of Elks will have initiation next Monday night, with six candidates entitled to the degree. A banquet will be served at 6.30. At the last session Walter H. Butler, E. Stewart Orbeton, Harry L. Sanborn and Wallace E. Spear were initiated.

The Sir Knights of Claremont Commandery will assemble at the Armory Sunday, at 9.30 a. m. sharp, for the purpose of attending divine service at the Universalist Church. Sir Knights will appear in full Templar regalia, without sword. The eminent commander requests a full attendance on this occasion.

The police were dragging at Bay Point this morning for George A. Sylvester of Glen street, who is believed to have been drowned there since Thursday afternoon, when he was last seen at work dismantling the old wharf. Yesterday Marshal Gilchrist and Patrolman Gray found Mr. Sylvester's boat bottom up on the beach, and about 600 feet away the oars were found embedded in seaweed. About two and one-half years ago Sylvester left a suicide note, with instructions that his body be buried beside that of his mother in Lincolnville. The police made an extended search, and even visited the cemetery in Lincolnville. It was finally discovered that Sylvester had returned to his own home and had taken an overdose of poison. Sylvester was formerly employed by the Camden & Rockland Water Co. He is unmarried and lived with relatives.

An Adventure Romance

GEORGE AGNEW CHAMBERLAIN

COPYRIGHT THE BOBBY-MERRILL COMPANY

SYNOPSIS.

PART I.—Robert Hervey Randolph, young New York man-about-town, leaves the home of his sweetheart, Miss Van Teller, chagrined because of her refusal of his proposal of marriage. His income, $10,000 a year, which he must surrender if a certain Miss Imogene Thornton (whom he has seen only as a small girl ten years before) is found, is not considered by the girl of his heart adequate to modern needs in a "don't care" mood. Randolph enters a taxi, unseen by the driver, and is driven to the stage door of a theater. A man he knows, Duke Beamer, induces a girl to enter the cab. Beamer, attempting to follow, is pushed back by Randolph and the cab moves on. His new acquaintance tells Randolph she is a chorus girl, and has lost her position. She is in distress, even hungry, and he takes her to his apartment. There, after lunch, a chance remark convinces him the girl is the missing Pamela Thornton. He does not tell her of her good fortune, but secures her promise to stay in the flat until the morning, and leaves her. In a whimsical mood, also realizing that the girl's reappearance has left him practically penniless, he bribes the taxi driver to let him take his job, and leaving word with the legal representative of the Thornton estate where he can find Pamela, takes up new duties under the name of "Slim Hervey." He loves the girl, but his pride forbids him approaching her under their changed conditions.

PART II.—One evening he is engaged by Beamer Tremont, notorious playboy, to drive him and Made Van Teller to a drive-in known as "Greenwood." Aware of the evil nature of the place, Randolph drives the pair to Greenwood cemetery. Infuriated, Beamer gets out of the cab and Randolph leaves him there, taking the girl (who has awakened to a realization of her folly) to her home. Made recognizes him.

PART III.—In Randolph's apartment Pamela, pondering over the strangeness of the night's adventure, realizes she is very much more than interested in the young man. Next morning Mr. Beamer, Milvyns, her family's legal representative, informs her of her inheritance. Learning that her acceptance of the money will leave Randolph penniless, even the title of the apartment belonging to her, she proposes to divide the inheritance with him. Mr. Milvyns tells her Randolph is unlikely to agree to such an arrangement, even if found. He, however, agrees to do his utmost to find the young man. Wide advertising and the employment of detective agencies fail to accomplish this. Made Van Teller tells Mr. Milvyns of her encounter with Randolph. Knowing only that he is driving a taxi-cab, Pamela sets out to find him. The search naturally is a long one, but finally she comes upon Randolph in front of a hotel. Unseen by him she enters his cab, but when giving the starter her address Randolph recognizes her, and in his excitement he smashes the cab against the curb, throwing the girl out.

PART IV.—Stopping only to see that Pamela is unhurt, Randolph flees from the scene. While he is explaining his mishap at the office of the cab company Mr. Milvyns appears. After much persuasion Randolph agrees to call on Pamela nine days after that time. He also announces his intention of accumulating $100,000 in the interval, and arranges to drive a cab on the Wall Street beat. There, as he had hoped, he picks up a "trip" on the market. His entire capital being in the neighborhood of $2, he goes to one of his clubs and sits in a poker game, trusting to chance to secure a stake that will enable him to play the "tip" he has secured. He is lucky and runs his capital up to an amount sufficient for his needs. His inside information on the market proves correct and he closes the deal with the sum he had decided it was necessary to have in order to meet Pamela on a footing of equality. Punctual to the minute he calls on the young lady, who had awaited his coming with impatience, and at the close of the interview there is no question of the division of the inheritance—or the apartment.

For a moment, but for a moment only, Mr. Randolph was dazed. Was it possible that the last three weeks hadn't been a year? He drew out his sixty-eight dollars and fifty cents nonchalantly, as though they were merely the loose change he had on his person, bought fifty in chips, and laid the small heap of what was left of his cash on the board. The strain on his nerves during the next half-hour put that of the five days' wait for a hunch on the Street to the blush. There came a moment when all his chips were gone, and he was forced to see with a full cause for his small pile of change only.

"Serves you right, Randy," said Mr. Mein. "For forgetting to pile up the ready in a table-stake game; there are two and a half million walking the streets."

"Oh, stow it!" murmured Mr. Randolph, as he counted out his share, amounting to ninety-two dollars and fifty cents, and pushed across the rest of the fat pot to the next best hand. He looked up and smiled. "Boys," he remarked frankly, "I'm riding a hunch with four legs. Watch me."

Five spectators did, but got little excitement of their pains. Mr. Randolph was playing that most difficult and uninteresting of poker variations—a tight game. Mr. Seegar turned impatient as the conviction grew upon him that he had run up against the original hard-shell who never drew to less than a pair of tens, never bluffed, and could surrender three kings without a sigh to a low straight unseen. He began to make facetious remarks in connection with the safety-first campaign which was then at its height.

Mr. Randolph nursed his pile through five long hours up to eighteen hundred dollars. Then it was that he suddenly met a raise of two hundred on the part of Mr. Seegar, tacked on three hundred more, waited for that individual to throw in his very good hand, face up, with the resigned smile of a wise one, and then carelessly displayed in the same manner, his own three-flush, so bottled that the age, unmistakable age, had settled on the faces of the five youths. He put his fingers to his own countenance; he could feel the added years.

The game ended, as do all titanic battles, in absolute silence. Mr. Randolph sorted, stacked, tabulated his winnings, and stuffed them into all the pockets on his person. He then noted the hour—eleven o'clock of a bright Thursday morning—and, proceeding to the nearest telephone booth, called up Mr. William Verries of Verries & Cat, stock brokers.

"That you, William? This is Bob Randolph. I've got sixteen thousand dollars in my jeans at the moment of speaking. What's the lowest margin you'll give me to sell Amal, L. S. & C. short for delivery at tomorrow's closing?"

"Sell Amal, L. S. & C. short?" gasped Mr. Verries. "Why, you're crazy! Buy, and I'll talk to you."

"I don't want to buy," said Mr. Randolph patiently. "You're right, in a way, about my being crazy. You see, since you saw me the other day, I've come into some easy long stuff, and it's just ruining my experiment in the philosophy of a moneyless life. I want to lose my way just like I told you, and if you don't promise to start selling for me inside of the next five minutes, I'll let friendship slide and call up some real brokers."

"Well, if you put it in that way, you escaped soon, I'll assist your sap-headed philosophy to your exact cash limit. When will you pony up?"

"In twenty minutes by the clock," said Mr. Randolph cheerfully, and rang off.

The historic pounding drive on Amal, L. S. & C. started with the opening of the market on the following day was of such Homeric proportions that the advance sale made by Messrs. Verries & Cat on behalf of Mr. R. H. Randolph during the Thursday afternoon next preceding was a mere drop in the bucket of oblivion to the public at large—a mere fleabite lost in the shuffling of epidemics to the monster survivors involved in the combat; but to Mr. Randolph, it was a matter of transcendent importance.

With a feeling of great relief over an order that he had placed with his tailor nine days previously for complete new afternoon and evening outfit, the successful hunchbroker collected one hundred and thirty-two thousand, thirty-eight and no hundredths dollars and proceeded to turn in his wagon to the Village Cab Company, together with the highest check reading ever known in the history of Manhattan. He then chartered one of the vehicles for hire of that concern and directed it to carry him to his new clothes.

At ten minutes to four, he emerged from his tailor's, garbed in the very latest thing in slim-line morning coats, a top hat, pearly-striped trousers, spats, a mottled, platinum-handled, snookwood stick, and a gardenia in his buttonhole. Ignoring the wise and friendly-sneering look on the face of the cab driver, who was none other than our old friend of saturnine visage, Patrick O'Reilly by name, fallen on evil times, and re-engaged that very day on Mr. Randolph's recommendation, he gave a certain address in Fifty-ninth street.

Let us now break one of the cardinal rules of narrative for cash by ruthlessly switching the objective point of view. Behold Miss Imogene Pamela Thornton dressed in a ravishing, modestly modern tea-gown effect that would have cost her great-grandmother a duking in the pond off Bleecker street if she had dared to wear it in her day at a fancy-dress ball, pacing up and down Mr. Randolph's recent sitting room and counting off nine on her fingers for the hundred and eighty-sixth time.

And then, at last, the bell! Tomlinson, his jaw set grimly, advanced upon the door. For an agonizing your cab, sir, and he thought he ought to report anything like that."

"The Officer on the Beat Says the Grats is Lifting Your Cab, Sir."

"Tell him to undo the check and let it feed itself down again," growled Mr. Randolph.

The day passed; night fell. Now one and then another of the six devotees of a science which even in the youth of this nation had forestalled all the wonders of the submarine, the flight of man, and wireless telegraphy withdrew just long enough to connect with the Daily Night bank round the corner or some other convenient base of supplies and returned to set new money to catch old. But Mr. Randolph had no occasion to do this. His heap of chips and cash of the realm rested on too solid a base of its own.

There may be recorded an amusing diversion from the serious business in hand. It was ushered in by the crest-fallen Herbert, who confessed that actual physical exhaustion had driven him to forty winks, during which time a professional purloiner of motor-car accessories had stopped, spellbound by the gigantic sum registered on Mr. Randolph's taximeter, had promptly stolen the preposterous clock, and was now on the club steps offering to settle with whoever was the interested agent on a fifty-fifty basis.

Great was the consternation of the enterprising speculator in theft when he was confronted by two persons in one; namely, Mr. R. H. Randolph, lessee of Car No. 1898, and Mr. R. H. Randolph, alias Slim Hervey, the late driver of said cab. His glib tongue, loaded to the gills with arguments as to how much the fare would save through the sudden exit of the clock from the ken of man, tripped hopelessly on this vision of wrath in the shape of a driver in whose interests the tick-er had been faithfully saving.

It took Mr. Randolph just thirty-two precious minutes to force the crest-fallen one to replace and readjust the busy bee of meter readings. When he returned to the fray upstairs, he noticed a strange phenomenon of poker—small moment, Pamela held her breath, and then let it go with a rush as she heard the old valet's sonorous voice tined, nay, reeking, with the joy of welcome.

"Glad to see you back, Master Robert. Miss Thornton will receive you in the sitting room." Followed jingling sounds as Tomlinson disconnected the doorbell.

He was right in surmising that his former employer did not require a guide, but, as it turned out, there was no reason why he should not have witnessed the very proper meeting which took place between the two outwardly cool young members of society who were inwardly, nevertheless, seething with more emotions than there are fumes in a lime-kill.

THE PAST WEEK IN REVIEW

The Courier-Gazette's Brief Glance At the Most Important Things Engaging the World's Attention.

The Administration Program.

Many and confident, but conflicting, guesses are being made as to the program of the new Administration, for the old authoritative is likely to be given out, until President Harding sends his first message to Congress—or delivers it in person, after the precedent established by his predecessor. It is generally believed, however, that domestic rather than foreign questions will be given the first place—an emergency tariff, immigration restriction, a national budget system, tax revision, and railroad and labor questions, rather than the League of Nations or the status of Mexico, or the relations of Panama and Costa Rica. The first deliverances of the new Administration will be followed with intense interest, as a suggestion of future policies; also the first alignments of parties and groups in the new Congress.

The Wall Street Bomb Explosion

It is an extraordinary and depressing circumstance that, six months and more after the bomb explosion in Wall Street, September 16, 1914, by which scores of people were killed and scores more were seriously injured, the motive of the tragic crime and the identity of the person or persons responsible for it should remain an unsolved mystery. It has seemed as if all efforts to solve it had been abandoned; but there has been a slight revival of hope the past week in the arrival at New Orleans from Rio Janeiro of five men, in the steamer Rushville, shackled hand and foot, who, it was rumored, had had some connection with the Wall Street bomb plot. They were arrested in response to a wireless message from the United States, and they obstinately fought their captors at Rio Janeiro. All of them, apparently, are Russians.

The Anti-Bolsheviks Defeated.

The anti-Bolshevik revolt in Russia, led by General Kozlovsky, which had its headquarters at Kronstadt, and in two weeks time gained such headway as seriously to menace the Lenin-Trotsky regime, collapsed completely March 18, before repeated attacks by the Bolsheviki forces. The Anti-Bolshevik garrison of the city numbered only 15,000, and the attacking force was four times as large, and much better equipped. A good many refugees from the city succeeded in getting across the Finnish frontier and were placed in concentration camps where the American Red Cross aided the wounded, and distributed supplies. As for the defenders of Kronstadt who fell into the hands of the Bolsheviki troops, most of them were executed off hand, by Trotsky's orders after the usual Russian fashion.

Lenine and Trotsky at Odds.

Some of the Russian despatches suggest the possibility that Lenin and Trotsky, the heads of the Russian Soviet, may be more or less at odds, the former being credited with a desire to pursue a conciliatory policy toward the Right Wing of the Socialists, while the latter has formed a new body guard consisting of cadets from all the Russian villages, and has organized his own system of police. On March 18, a treaty between Russia and Poland was signed at Riga under which both parties bind themselves to abstain from propaganda against each other, and to refrain from all attempts to interfere with each other's government. Russia promised the Poles an indemnity of $15,000,000 in gold, and released them from all responsibility for the old Russian debt. Russia is moving, with a great deal of success, for the establishment of trade relations with other countries—treaties for that purpose having already been negotiated with Great Britain, Turkey and Germany.

Germany Wins Upper Silesia

The long-anticipated plebiscite in Upper Silesia, to determine whether that region, comprising approximately 3,500 square miles, exceptionally rich in coal, iron, zinc and lead, should be under the sovereignty of Germany or of Poland, took place on Sunday, March 20; and the result was overwhelmingly in favor of Germany. Germans and Poles from all parts of the world, former residents of Silesia, journeyed back to take part in the election, one of the last contingents being a group who came from South Africa. Large concentrations of Polish and German troops were reported on the Silesian frontiers; and Allied forces were distributed at various centres, where they would be ready to suppress any disorders that might occur. Their services, however, were not needed, and the day passed in unexpected tranquility.

Silesia May be Divided.

Although the Upper Silesia plebiscite gave a total vote of 716,408 for Germany and 471,408 for Poland, a majority of the districts—nine out of sixteen—appear to have been carried for Poland, and these are the districts which are richest in coal and other mineral deposits. Poland will therefore, for claim, and its claim is supported, or probably will be supported, by France, that the territory must be divided in accordance with the results of the voting by communes. Such a division would give to Poland about 50 per cent. of the mineral resources of the disputed territory. Some ground is found for this claim in a provision of the treaty of Versailles that a full report of the vote in each commune will be communicated to the Allied and Associated Powers, and that "regard will be paid to the wishes of the inhabitants as shown by their vote."

Germany Balks at Payment.

The Reparations Commission made a direct demand upon Germany for the payment of one billion marks in gold on reparation account before March 23, 1921; but the day came and went, and no payment was made. Germany professes to have already paid the twenty billion marks due May 1, but the Reparations Commission computes the payments at only eight billion marks. The German Reichsbank, which admits having a gold reserve of a little more than one billion marks, March 21, declares that it will sternly oppose any attempt by the Entente to seize the reserve to apply to the reparations demands; and insists that seizure of the gold would instantly result in devaluation of the currency, of which immense quantities were held abroad, and that such a seizure would be a violation of the treaty.

Communist Outbreaks in Germany

On March 23, there was a series of Communist outbreaks in Germany. At Hamburg, Communist workers seized the city administration buildings, occupied the shipyards, and hoisted the red flag. In Leipzig, Dresden, Rodewisch and other cities in central Germany, the Communists directed their efforts against court houses, city halls, public banks and police headquarters. Dynamite was freely used in the destruction of public buildings, and railway trains were derailed by taking the rivets from the rails. The authorities had ample warning of the revolutionary movement, for the German Bolsheviki organ, the Red Flag, had, for several days, published inflammatory proclamations, urging its followers that the time for action had arrived, and telling them to take weapons from the Mac boots and rifles, and, as the hour of the sword, and distribute them among the workmen; but the Government took no action to repress the rising.

H. W. BORING, a well-to-do Kansas farmer, says he has gained twenty pounds and is in better general health than he has been in years, since taking Tanlac.

"Since Tanlac has overcome my troubles I have gained twenty pounds in weight and am in better general health than for years past." was the straight-forward statement made a few days ago by H. W. Boring, a prominent and well-to-do farmer living at Overland Park, Kans.

"During the two years I suffered I tried everything I knew of to get relief, but nothing seemed to reach my case until I tried Tanlac. My appetite was poor and my digestion was so bad I could hardly retain my food. Nothing seemed to agree with me; in fact, I was almost a confirmed dyspeptic. My whole system seemed to be out of shape. I would have pains across the small of my back so bad at times I could hardly move around."

"My nerves were all unstrung and I would become upset at the least little thing. I seldom slept well at night, and finally, became so weak and run-down that I lost weight rapidly. I was also troubled a great deal with catarrh and of mornings had to spend a half hour or more clearing up my head."

"This is just the condition I was in when I began taking Tanlac, and it certainly has been a blessing to me. It just seemed to be made especially for my case. I improved from the first. My digestion now is perfect and regardless of what I eat I never suffer any bad after-effects."

"The pains across my back have entirely disappeared. The catarrh has left me, too, and my head is perfectly clear. I am no longer nervous and rest well at night. I have regained my lost weight and am feeling better and stronger than I have in years. I am going to keep Tanlac in my house so it will be handy at all times."

Tanlac is sold in Rockland by Corner Drug Store; in Washington by F. L. Ludwig; in North Haven by W. S. Hopkins; in South Thomaston by L. O. Hanley, and by the leading druggists in every town—adv.

COMMENDS MR. BRASIER

Editor of The Courier-Gazette:

I want to say a few words in regard to Road Commissioner Brasier, of whom there has been criticism, some remarking that he has become a Republican. We should lay politics aside when it comes to a town office.

Mr. Brasier is a man of long experience as road commissioner and he thoroughly understands every branch of the work.

Some complaints were made last year about the sidewalks, some people not understanding why he did not repair them better. The reason was a simple one—it was because lumber could not be obtained, so the commissioner had to patch them the best he could.

He repaired bridges and cleaned out ditches that had been neglected for years. I say that Mr. Brasier is the man for the job.

Charles Lane is at home after an absence of several months.

Mrs. B. H. Paul was the guest of her daughter Mrs. Donald Johnson in Camden Thursday.

Miss Eleanor L. Griffith returned Friday to Rockland after spending a few days at Mrs. Sarah M. Rust's.

Dr. F. N. Allen is moving to Thomaston.

A. C. Moore has been in Vinalhaven this week.

Mrs. Harry Humphrey and daughter Ruth of Gloucester were guests of Mrs. Humphrey's parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. E. B. Shibles Wednesday.

Miss Minnie P. Shepherd entertained friends from Rockport Thursday evening at her rooms in Camden in honor of Miss Ella Mackey whose birthday it was to celebrate. A delicious picnic supper was served and what was enjoyed.

There will be an Easter concert at the Baptist church Sunday evening at 7 o'clock given by the members of the Sunday School under the direction of Mrs. Mabel Crone and Miss Bertha Davis.

At the Methodist church Sunday 2:30 p. m. Rev. J. S. Crossland will preach on his subject "The Power of the Resurrection." The public is invited.

Mrs. Charles Prince returned today from Dorchester, Mass., with the remains of her daughter, Mrs. Bertha Berry. Funeral services will be held Sunday afternoon at 1:30 at the Methodist church. Rev. J. S. Crossland of Rockland will officiate.

H. B. Stone is employed at Cobb's store in Rockland.

The Enkuklus Club held a meeting at the High School building Thursday evening and two candidates were initiated. Refreshments were served.

Miss E. R. Groelande of Hartford, Conn. is the guest of Capt. and Mrs. E. O. Patterson for Easter week.

Miss Clara L. Davis who has been spending the winter with Mrs. Clementia J. Richards left Wednesday for Newfield, where she will be the guest of Mrs. J. F. Thurston.

The High School is planning a great celebration at the Grange hall on Monday evening, March 28, in the form of a fair, ending up with a poverty ball. Carroll E. Stevens of Hallowell is the new principal and a hustler. The school for the present school year had had luck. Mr. Materson of Liberty, a most excellent teacher, was secured but got the position of school superintendent for a block of towns, so resigned. Mr. Moore of North Union took the school for a short period. Finally Mr. Stevens was secured and is constantly studying methods to boost the school, among which is this fair and entertainment. The fair will include a minstrel show, fortune telling etc. There will be a short Spring vacation beginning April 25. Saturday sessions are now being held so the school may close earlier in June.

W. E. Crockett and Miss Verneta Farrar of this place attended Probate Court in Rockland last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Hibbert and family visited his mother last Wednesday.

Mrs. Harriet Howard has purchased a graphophone of Leslie Savage.

Ernest Wellman made a business trip to South China the first of the week.

Leslie Savage is getting out lumber to build a garage.

DEER ISLE

Mr. and Mrs. A. O. Gross left for Portland Thursday to spend a few days with Mr. and Mrs. Frank Gross.

McKinley High School has closed for a week's vacation.

Mrs. George Haskell and daughter Freda who have been spending the winter in Philadelphia returned home last Saturday.

T. G. Gray who has been very ill the past two months is improving.

The old store formerly occupied by the late Mr. Woodworth, Jeweler, is being remodelled for a garage and will be occupied by Arthur H. Greenlaw.

Mrs. Elizabeth Haskell who has been spending the winter with her brother Capt. William Richardson of Camden has returned home. She is a guest of Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Haskell for a short time before she opens "The Ark."

Fairbanks-Morse "Z" Farm Engines

Big reductions in prices have just been announced on "Z" engines. Remember that one or more of these engines on your farm will lighten your labor and help you get more work done.

The manufacturers have accepted their loss—we have accepted ours. You've been waiting for just this opportunity to buy at lower prices. Now you can do it.

Come in soon and let us show you the "Z" and prove the quality, design and workmanship, which convinced a lot of our former friends in this community that it is the one farm engine to buy.

The members of the Rubinstein Club at the regular session yesterday afternoon at Temple hall enjoyed this program: Current events, Mrs. Lillian Copping; paper, Interpretative Dance, Classic and Russian, Mrs. Rosa Littlefield; piano, A. de Ballet, A. Koreschechenko, Miss Rita Calderwood; soprano, "Why?" Tchaikovsky, Miss Mabelle Brown; contralto, "The Snowdrop" A. Gretchaninoff, Mrs. Hazel Atwood. A communication was read from the Bowdoin Alumni thanking the club for changing its concert night to accommodate the concert of the Bowdoin Musical Club; and a New York letter from Mrs. Carrie B. Shaw, conveying the appreciation of Mrs. Emma E. Wight for flowers sent her by the club of which she was one of the founders. The program of the next meeting of the Club on April 8 will deal with "Modern French Music," the paper by Miss Elbeth Carlini and Miss Mabel Holbrook chairman of the session.

Charles, the young son of Mrs. Robert C. Bicknell, has been critically ill with pneumonia, and a specialist was summoned from Portland. Yesterday the fever broke, and after a healthful sleep the boy was very much better this morning.

Mary, daughter of Julianne Passalacqua, has returned home from Sillsby Hospital.

Mrs. Cecil Clay a prominent Belfast society woman, who is well known in this city, has been elected a member of the board of overseers of the poor in Belfast.

A recent Belfast social event in which Rockland folks are interested is thus described in this week's Belfast Journal: "Mr. and Mrs. Norman A. Reed entertained Wednesday evening at a veritable St. Patrick's party. They were assisted by their house guests, Mrs. Blanchard Smith and Mrs. Robert Bicknell of Rockland. The house was decorated with green of the old Saint's favorite tint and lighted with candles, producing a very pleasing effect. Two long tables, in the dining and living room, were decorated with carnations and lighted with green candles. Covers were laid for 40 and the menu was in the color scheme of green and white. The place cards were in St. Patrick emblems, and the score card games that followed the dinner hour were in the same effects. There were six tables of auction for the ladies, Mrs. Grace C. Pillsbury winning the prize, a linen lunch cloth. The gentlemen were entertained with pitch and their prize, a box of cigars, was won by Dr. Sumner C. Patten. It was one of the most enjoyable and picturesque parties of the season."

PROUD SHIPS ONCE

Luzon, J. B. Walker and Sol-taire Now Converted Coal Carriers — Capt. Nichols Story.

A rather peculiar incident happened at Seaport the other day when Capt. Daniel C. Nichols, a retired master mariner, who has been ashore for 15 years, stepped on the deck of a vessel that he had last boarded in Hong Kong 20 years ago. Capt. Nichols was formerly commander of the big square riggers Emily Reed, Wandering Jew and Manuel Laguno, and known throughout the seven seas in the sailing vessel era of 25 years or more ago. The ship was the old Luzon, long since stripped of her top hamper, converted into a coal barge, and consigned to the prosaic task of following a towboat up and down the Atlantic coast.

The Luzon lay at the busy pier of the Penobscot Coal Company at Mack's Point, Seaport, which has been running night and day this winter, handling coal at the rate of 50,000 tons a month. In tow with two more converted sailing ships, the J. B. Walker and the Solitaire, both of them in their prime days well known to sea faring men on the Penobscot, she had brought in a cargo of coal for the Maine Central railroad.

These old ships lay in the stream astern of the Luzon, waiting their turn to go under the great modern cranes that unload in a day's time the vessels that used to lie at anchor for months in the harbors of Singapore, Hong Kong or Shanghai, leisurely unloading their outward cargo or taking in tea, rattan, matting, fireworks, and other Chinese merchandise.

The Luzon has a special claim on the interest of Seaport. For many years, as a sailing ship, she was commanded by a native of the town Capt. Jeremiah Park. A few years ago Capt. Park, then in command of the ship Magna Reva, was lost with all hands in the North Atlantic, on a voyage from Liverpool to New York. The Magna Reva was fitted with wireless, and an S. O. S. from her was picked up by some distant vessel, but this was the last that was ever heard of the ship.

Capt. Albert Johnson of Providence, the present commander of the barge Luzon, did the honors as Capt. Nichols inspected the old ship from stem to stern.

"Well this looks natural," said Capt. Nichols, standing on the quarter deck and casting his eyes, not aloft, but where aloft used to be. "I'll tell you why it looks natural. The last time I saw the old Luzon, she had just been dismantled in a typhoon in the China Sea, and had come into Hong Kong for repairs. She was a good deal of a wreck aloft—but not so bad, I guess, as she is now."

Sitting on the rail, he told the story of that time when the old hull under his feet had battled with a typhoon and lost its top hamper in a legitimate accident at sea.

"The Luzon was bound from New-castle, N. S. W., to Manila with the same cargo that she's been carrying today. Outside the Bashee Channel this typhoon caught her, and she had a hard time of it. Jerry Park was in her then. The weather cleared off for a long spell, as it does after a typhoon and he was able to bring her into Hong Kong under her own sail. Manila was no place to repair a ship in those days while Hong Kong had every facility.

"I was there in the Wandering Jew at the time. The Luzon came in one night and anchored close beside me. I sent my mate over in the sampan to see what ship it was, for I could make out even in the darkness that something had happened to her."

"Next morning I went aboard myself to look her over. Her bowsprit had been carried away clean at the knighthead; she looked about the same at the bows as she does today. The foremast was gone at the mast-head, but the fore yard was still crossed. On the main and mizzen, both topgallantmasts were carried away. The forward house was badly gutted, and everything movable around decks stove up; this, with the wreck of the rigging and running gear gave her a pretty sick appearance."

"But it didn't take long to put her in shape, again," concluded Capt. Nichols. "Her hull wasn't in the least injured. She was a fine strong ship then. See those iron straps?" He led the way to the hatch, and pointed to the side of the vessel in the low hold; they were nearly finished unloading. The old hull was strapped from bow to stern with a cross-hatch of heavy iron.

"That strapping was put on in Shanghai a number of years before the time I'm speaking of," said Capt. Nichols. "There was a lot of money laid out on this ship from time to time; the result was one of the staunchest hulls in the business. Does she leak any now, Capt. Johnson?"

"Not a drop," answered the skipper of the barge. "Light or loaded, we never have to touch the pumps. She was built in 1881 40 years ago, and she's been a coal barge now for 11 years."

"She didn't leak a drop after the typhoon, either," said Capt. Nichols. "Why I remember it is because we had an argument about the cablegram Jerry Park was sending home. Put in code word 'Ship not leaking,' I advised him, when he handed me the message to look over. 'Oh, if I say nothing about it, they'll understand you'll just put your owners to the expense of asking, I said. But he sent it off as it was, and sure enough, next morning came a cable from home 'Is ship leaking?'"

"Well, those were good old days," said Capt. Nichols, letting his eye travel along the familiar run of the deck as he turned to go ashore. "My last ship, the Manuel Laguno, was converted into a barge and is still running, I believe. I wish she might come to Seaport some time." Then he paused. "No, I don't either!" he exclaimed. "I wouldn't go aboard of her if she came. I wouldn't care to see her like this, after all the time I've put in keeping her shipshape, and after all the experiences we've been through together under sail."

The Luzon is the smallest of the three old sailing vessels now in the harbor of Seaport. She was built in Bath in 1879. Her dimensions, as a ship, were as follows: Gross tonnage, 1,390; net tonnage, 1,339; length, 296 feet; width, 40 feet; depth, 24 feet. The Solitaire was a slightly larger ship than the Luzon. Her dimensions were: Gross tonnage, 1,532; net tonnage, 1,462; length, 229 feet; width 40 feet; depth, 24 feet. She was built in Bath in 1879. Her owner, it is related wanted to build a ship for some member of the family; he approached other members of the family and friends, but no one was ready to take a piece of a vessel just then. "All right," he said, "I'll build myself, and call her the Solitaire."

The J. B. Walker, the largest of the three, is a product of Penobscot waters. She was built in 1879, in the old O'Brien shipyard in Thomaston, Maine. Her dimensions were: Gross tonnage, 2,179; net tonnage, 2,105; length, 247 feet; width, 42 feet; depth, 22 feet. She has had a sad experience as a barge, has twice been ashore, leaks badly, and is generally used up. On the tow north this time, she sprang a leak so seriously that the tug had to drop the other two barges and take her in under the land, fearing she was about to sink. She managed to keep afloat, however, but her steam pump was going day and night while she waits her turn at Mack's Point.

As these weather-beaten and dismantled craft lie at anchor off the old town which once boasted eight shipyards launching the same style of vessels, the home at one time of a tenth of all the deep-water captains in the American merchant marine, a period of 50 years of the history of the New England seacoast seems to pass in review. The ships lie in the same berth that ships used to be launched from the town, or when they had come home for repairs. Old Seaport sailors tell of the days when the bay was full of such craft at anchor.

One could easily imagine that a storm off shore had dismantled these three ships and that they had been brought to Seaport to be refitted with their spars and rigging again into tall wind-jammers. A second glance, however, quickly destroyed the illusion. The dilapidated appearance of the ships themselves, and the silence along the water front of the town, where rotting wharves and deserted buildings were all that remained of a once flourishing shipping industry, testified too plainly to the ravages of time and the passing of the old sailing ship era.

BROOKS IS ABANDONED

Bath Five Master Had Nothing But Trouble the Past Year.

The troubles of the five masted schooner Governor Brooks, which for nearly a year has been trying to deliver at Buenos Aires a cargo of coal shipped at Norfolk, are at an end. The vessel has been abandoned by her crew off the Brazilian coast, messages received in Boston Thursday.

Sailing from Norfolk May 7, 1920, the Governor Brooks encountered severe storms off the equator on July 25 and was forced to put into Rio de Janeiro for repairs. While at that port she was in collision with another vessel. Her cargo, unloaded to facilitate the repairs, was again stowed away in her bunkers, and on Feb. 8 she once more put out to sea, hopeful of making Buenos Aires. However, more serious leaks developed and her crew was forced to abandon her near Castillo, Brazil. They reached shore safely.

The Governor Brooks was built at Bath, in 1907, and was named for the then governor of Wyoming.

BRUNSWICK WILL DO IT

It is quite evident that Brunswick Phonographs and Records have been received so royally by music lovers that some manufacturers are attempting to lessen this enthusiasm, through the use of fallacious propaganda.

Although Brunswick Phonographs can play, accurately all makes of records, this subject is being used as a basis of their propaganda. Their reasonings have no weight.

We ask what is a correct tone? Is it something we have been able to bottle and hold as a standard for comparison as we do a standard of measure? As this has not been accomplished, we are thus forced to rely upon the ears of music critics to tell us what is correct. Why then should any manufacturer assume the position of music authority and claim that only that talking machine can play their own record? This very thing is constantly increasing the demand for Brunswick Phonographs.

Up to the time Brunswick products came upon the market the musical tastes of these critics could not be satisfied. Machines were still in the experimental stage. Critics were not inclined to recognize the phonograph as being a musical instrument. Their ears heard foreign sounds; those harsh, metallic, unnatural tones and surface noises expected from machines of such construction. The modern age has not seen any radical changes except in the Brunswick Phonograph.

The Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co., known for half a century as producers of quality merchandise brought together a body of critics and scientists, realizing that the music loving public were anxiously waiting for a phonograph that could be called a musical instrument; one that would faithfully reproduce; one that would not limit an owner to any one particular make of record; an instrument that embodied new features; an instrument that would maintain for the manufacturers that reputation for quality and progressiveness. Thus the creation of Brunswick Phonographs and Records.

Music critics remark at the wonderful, life-like tones reproduced by the Brunswick. They ask why it is that the Brunswick Musical Instrument can accomplish such wonderful things. The main reason is that the Brunswick Company have cast aside time-worn, unsatisfactory methods. Instead of using a square horn with metal casting, they use one constructed entirely of wood moulded in an oval shape. Instead of a one record reproducer, they equip all models with the Ultratone or all record reproducer, that by test has been found to reproduce all makes to the satisfaction of music critics. Another feature is the throat system of tone modifying. Still another is the automatic cover support. All of these show the progressiveness of the Brunswick Company.

To hear the Brunswick is to hear a finished musical instrument, one that embodies all the refinements and that has, very noticeably, eliminated the unnaturalness of machines of the past. Take a variety of records; a band, violin, soprano, tenor, cornet or any other—play them on any other make and then on the Brunswick. What is the result? For the first time you will be able to appreciate many wonderful tones and expressions heretofore lost. At this point you might ask why it is that artists exclusive to certain companies make statements praising their records when played on a machine of the same make. This is to be expected, as these artists must boost their own goods.

Decide for yourself rather than take the word of any manufacturer whose ideas may be selfish.

V. F. Studley, local agent for Brunswick Phonograph and Records, has a modern equipped department, where you may have the opportunity of comparing and deciding which phonograph and record is most life-like.—Adv.

THE GANNET TO QUIT
Busy Fish Commission Craft To Be Placed Out of Active Service.

The U. S. Fish Commission steamer Gannet has been engaged in picking up flounders for several weeks, cruising between Portland and Rockland, and has made great catches, picking up as many as 30 barrels of spawn flounders. These are taken immediately to the hatchery, some of the first caught being now ready for spawning. This catch will be suspended April 1 and a little later the spawn will be released in the same localities where the fish were caught.

The Gannet will carry on the fish collection business but a short time longer, as the Sundry Civil bill passed at the last session of Congress contained no appropriation for the maintenance of the steamer and at the close of the present fiscal year on June 30, the Gannet will be hauled up for good, and Capt. Greenleaf and the crew laid off. For 17 years the steamer has been in service on the Maine coast, working in connection with the Boothbay fish hatchery, and has collected an enormous quantity of seed lobsters and fish eggs and distributed the fry all along the coast. It is uncertain whether the failure to make an appropriation for continuing the business was intentional or otherwise, and it is possible the coming Congress may provide the necessary funds.

PHONOGRAPHS AND RECORDS

Why the Brunswick
Phonograph
is what it is

WHILE we rely entirely on the inherent merit of the BRUNSWICK to prove its own case, as it has always done—yet, it is a source of great satisfaction to occasionally reflect on the wonderful organization and resources back of it which has not only been responsible for the present unique position of esteem in which the instrument is universally held, but which also furnishes us and our clientele of BRUNSWICK owners with the satisfying assurance that the BRUNSWICK will always be the most desired of all phonographs.

A few facts concerning the Manufacturers of the Brunswick Phonograph

They are capitalized for $55,000,000.00.
—have branch offices in twenty-five cities in the United States—five in Canada, one in France, one in Cuba and one in South America.
—operate their own timber lands in Northern Michigan.
—make every part of the BRUNSWICK Phonograph in its entirety.
—are the only phonograph manufacturers in the United States, and we think, the only one in the world, that actually does this.
—have at the present time seven factories devoted to the manufacture of phonographs and parts, and two factories to the pressing of records.
—cut their own veneer logs and slice their own veneer.
—manufacture their own panels and are just completing a plant to manufacture shipping cases for their phonographs.

Ponder over these facts and you will readily discover the reason of our enthusiasm for Brunswick Phonographs and Records.

HEAR, THEN COMPARE

The way to fully appreciate the superiority of The Brunswick is to hear it, then make comparison. Your ear will quickly decide in favor of The Brunswick.

EMPIRE THEATRE

"Blue Streak McCoy" starring Harry Carey, heads a good weekend bill at this theatre today. It is a typical Western subject, handled in a manner that will please every fan who likes a lively picture.
Billie Burke in the sprightly Paramount picture, "The Frisky Mrs. Johnson," will be the attraction Monday and Tuesday. In this picture Miss Burke has an altogether new role, one that displays her more serious rather than her lighter qualities. She is a fascinating American widow who is known in Paris as "frisky," and the story concerns her efforts to save her sister from disgrace, even at the risk of losing the man she loves. Needless to say, Miss Burke wears some of the most attractive Parisian gowns ever seen on the screen. Ward Crane is leading man.—Adv.
